They held the view that in the starting of the session they were mystified and anxious about two year B.Ed. programme but they appreciated the efforts of the teachers regarding their emotional support and provision of latest study material.

Feedback from Practising Schools

Earlier, the institution invites the Principals of all the practising schools during Skill-in-Teaching Examination every year and an informal interaction is held with Co-ordinator, Skill-in-Teaching Examination, appointed by the University along with the Chairperson and Co-ordinator of IQAC. Here, an effort was made to seek feedback about the B.Ed. program from principals and subject teachers of practising schools.

Almost all the stakeholders suggested that a student-teacher should be given the academic subject knowledge along with the methodology to be used for teaching the subject. They held the view that practice is the hallmark of B.Ed. course and college is well prepared to enable the students to achieve the mastery in the skill of teaching.
